Heart screening for teen athletes

Even kids who seem healthy and have passed a physical may have heart problems. This can lead to sudden cardiac arrest.

Register today for our seventh annual Teen Athlete Cardiac Screening.

We will check students ages 13–19 for potential heart problems. This low-cost screening takes about an hour. It includes an electrocardiogram (ECG); height, weight, body mass index (BMI) measurements; and a cardiac physical exam.

Pediatric cardiologists, pediatricians and health care professionals perform the test, and you will get results at the screening.

A parent or guardian must accompany all participants.

This screening does not take the place of a school-mandated physical.
