Business Plan Basics Series

Monday, October 7, 14, 21, 28,4 @7:30-10:30am

Learn basic tools and research for writing a business plan.

Last week it was a great success to learn about business legalities with Professor Susan Felstiner and Julieanna Elegant. Thank you both for inspiring us to think more deeply about the problems and solutions to protect our small businesses. Thank you!

This week, we are pleased to welcome a great friend and accounting expert, David Wilcox of Numbercraft: Skilled writer, communicator, and relationship manager with over twenty years of experience in treasury and financial management, business strategy and financial modelling, property and management accounting, and accounting information systems roles for both nonprofit and for-profit organizations.

This week's homework -please be prepared to review Assignment Series 3 Cash Flow & Marketing: List of Expenses on page 6 of your worksheet. We will be reviewing at the beginning of the workshop :) We also encourage you to review previous assignments and exercises. If you have a profit and loss or cash flow, please bring. Also, please send us 2-3 questions regarding marketing and accounting systems/taxes. We will do our best to help you feel more confident. There is still so much to cover but we hope that you walked away with more questions regarding potential risks with your business. For some of you, perhaps you have never thought of separating your business from personal or even considered the need for any contracts. We totally get it and want you to know that is common and it is why we are grateful to count on SBLC as a community resource.

We are here for you -please know that! The City and Chamber understand the need for these resources so you can have success with your business-that is why Impact Beaverton exists!

By the way, if you find yourself information overload with this or any other workshops, please do not hesitate to ask for a 1:1 workshop review/consultation. I will make myself available to meet with you Monday afternoons and Wednesday mornings. Dean, Claudia, and I are also available via email and phone. Take advantage of this opportunity so you can get up to speed and meet your goals 😊

Simple accounting software Attached, you will find a Business plan template in word and cash flow template for your reference. Reminds me, Sra. Aida asked for more information regarding simple accounting systems, so I referred her to page 19 on your Business Plan Template, "Feed The Poor." Please feel free to reach out to Supriya if you are interested in learning more about this software:
